New Album: Lifelines released 21st July 2018.

"There is such a feeling in this rock music, that when Norman adds americana/country to it, you just gotta hear more."

Quote from the album review Uncle Rock (rockfarbror.se). Rated 4/5.

A decade on the road with 120-150 gigs per year have had some effect on me for sure. Here's the fifth album in 10 years.

Exploring different styles within the genre of Americana this has 'Heartland rock' written all over it.

I'd like to see this album is like a new neighbor moving into the old house next door, rebuilds and put some new paint on it. It brings life to the whole neighborhood. It's familiar yet fresh and modern. Andreas Eriksson, the producer hasn't turned 30 yet and definitely brought a modern sound to the album.

Lifelines contains stories from real life.

An old colleague lost his daughter to cancer just 22 years old in

'Still Here We Are' and asked me to write her a song. When I was 18 I felt the need to discover the world and left home to see America in 'Born To Be'

'Dreams and Guitars is a true story about Josie who got

~~..... and ...~~ tired of her abusive boyfriend and packed her bags and left to freedom. She moved to Nashville where we met her.

The track "Can't Get Enough" is a walk through my hometown. Where we ran when we were kids and living life to the fullest. In the second verse my son is now running the same streets.

Runaway is also a true story. Alcohol can turn good people bad. Here someone had too much to drink, snapped and went crazy, ran out the door and winding up in a river. February, freezing cold, in the middle of the night. Duet with Sofie Alvé. A singer from Malmö with an amazing voice.

No matter what side you are on in any conflict in the world, there are always kids who suffer most. Political, religious or whatever reason the wars are raging, the kids are totally innocent. No kid is born evil... Remember The Children.

These Are The Times ...The world leaders of today sure ain't right... It's a crazy world.

Lifelines availability

Lifelines is available on all digital platform as well as CD and soon vinyl.

Hope You all like it!
