The Fry Brothers have been singing and playing since they were young. They first started playing in a local band where they experimented with a variety of styles and sound but always kept in touch with their roots. They have been playing together for more than twenty years. The songs they write can vary, from ballads to country / Country Rock duo. Roy also studied music at SMB (school of mines) at the same time Tim was playing pedal steel guitar with Melbourne Country Band. Tim plays a 12 string acoustic and Roy playing acoustic or electric guitar, plus added harmony vocals they create their own brand of country music.

Their first CD - You never know - was picked up by Hardrush Music, and recorded at Studio International. Their second CD - Waitin on the wonderful - was recorded at The Fun House Studio, in Nashville and was produced by Mark Moffatt.
